TriHealth Board of Trustees

Quint Studer is the founder of the Studer Community Institute, a nonprofit research-based entity with the goal of improving quality of life. The current focus of the Institute is on early brain development, small business growth and community engagement. Quint also founded the Studer Group, an organization that helps health systems implement evidence-based leadership practices to improve organizational performance.

In 2015, Quint sold Studer Group to Huron Consulting Group to focus on his nonprofit and other business ventures including the Pensacola Blue Wahoos baseball team, which is the Double-A affiliate for the Cincinnati Reds. Quint has over 30 years of experience helping health systems to develop healthcare leaders, improve operations and optimize the delivery of patient care in health systems across the country.

Quint has been recognized multiple times by Modern Health Care magazine as one of the 100 most influential health care leaders in the country. These skills and broad health care experience as a true “industry expert” will complement our TriHealth board members and prepare us to tackle the challenges of healthcare consumerism, business model disruption and the imperative to deliver greater value in the coming years.
