

TriHealth Continuing Medical Education
2017 DISCLOSURE DECLARATION

TriHealth's Continuing Medical Education (CME) Program sponsors activities that are balanced, independent, and based on the best scientific evidence available. All individuals in a position to control content of CME are required to disclose any relevant financial relationships with commercial interests.

This is defined as financial relationships in any amount occurring within the past 12 months that create a conflict of interest. A commercial interest is any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by, or used, on patients, with the exemption of non-profit or government organizations and non-health care related companies.

Failure to disclose disqualifies the individual from developing, speaking, managing, or otherwise controlling the content of a CME activity. This disclosure must be made known to participants in advance of the activity. Having a relevant financial relationship does not necessarily prevent an individual from being involved in the CME activity. However, the CME Office must implement a mechanism to resolve the conflict.

Additionally, individuals who have the opportunity to affect the content of CME must disclose whether or not they or their spouse/partner have a relevant financial relationship with a commercial interest.
